What fees are paid to your adviser?

At Bona Fide Advice we work under fee for service arrangements with our clients, also, we may receive Insurance commissions from Insurance providers. These fees and commissions are paid to Bona Fide Advice Pty Ltd as the Licensee and are not paid directly to your Adviser. Your Adviser is paid by way of annual salary. How we are getting paid is set out in below and will be fully detailed in your SOA.

In all cases, details of payment required for the services provided will be given to you at the time of any personal financial advice or when executing a transaction on your behalf. All fees detailed below are inclusive of GST (where applicable).

What Fees your adviser charge?

The Adviser Service Fee:

A fee agreed between you and your Adviser for preparing the Statement of Advice and ongoing services prior to providing and implementing those services. These fees will be disclosed in the Statement of Advice as a dollar figure fee for service.

Please Note: some product providers such as superannuation companies offer the option to deduct the fees from your funds on periodic basis, if that was the case it will be disclosed in SOA.

Commissions:

Your adviser may receive an upfront commission between 0% and 60% of your first annual insurance premium for arranging your cover, in addition your adviser may receive an ongoing annual commission between 0% and 20% of your annual insurance premiums.

Example: an insurance product with an annual premium of $2,000, where the issuer pays an upfront commission of 60%, we will receive $1,200. The issuer also will pay us 20% of annual premium as an ongoing commission for as long as you hold the product, assuming annual premium of $2,000 it equates to $400 per year.

Note that, these commission payments are made by relevant product issuers and will be paid to Bona Fide Advice Pty Ltd.

Hourly Fees:

In some cases, if it was agreed between you and your adviser we will charge hourly basis fees for ad-hoc services.

At Bona Fide Advice, we do not charge contribution fees or performance fees so the fees that you will pay us it is simple and clear and represents value for money and it will be disclosed to you on annual basis in Fee Disclosure Statements.
